

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements . . . . .	7
List of Common Abbreviations . . . . .	9
Note on Dates, Transliterations, and Translations . . . . .	10
Introduction: The Problem of Impermanence . . . . .	11
Early Abbasid palaces and the Dār al-Khilāfa of Samarra as a case study . . . . .	12
Research on Samarra's palaces since the first recorded excavations . . . . .	13
Architecture and audience . . . . .	15
Approach and outline . . . . .	16
1. Grandeur and Impermanence: The Construction of Samarra and Other Palace Complexes in the Early Abbasid Period . . . . .	19
Samarra's rise and fall as the Abbasid imperial residence . . . . .	19
Impermanence in early Abbasid palaces . . . . .	22
Impediments to permanence: Geography and politics . . . . .	25
The theme of architectural impermanence in Abbasid literature . . . . .	27
Historical consciousness and the relevance of a lasting legacy . . . . .	30
Glorious impermanence . . . . .	33
2. A Place Set Apart: Building with Open Space in Abbasid Palace Exteriors . . . . .	35
The difficulties of Samarra's Bāb al-Āmma . . . . .	36
The use of open space in Abbasid palace plans . . . . .	39
Exterior zones and Abbasid ceremonial . . . . .	43
Palace as ḥarīm . . . . .	46
The phenomenology of open space . . . . .	48
3. An Architecture of Temporary Events: The Adornment of the Audience Hall Complex in Samarra's Dār al-Khilāfa . . . . .	51
A note on sources . . . . .	53
The plan of the Audience Hall Complex . . . . .	53
Wall ornament found in situ: Orderly arrangements from varied sources . . . . .	55
Detached architectural fragments: A case of selective opulence? . . . . .	60
The architectural surface and the Abbasid audience . . . . .	64
The architecture of events . . . . .	69
4. An Ever-Changing Surface: Impermanence and Ornament in Abbasid Palaces . . . . .	71
Varied vegetation: Aesthetic flexibility in the ornament of Abbasid palaces . . . . .	73
Aesthetic rigidity in the ornament of Abbasid mosques? . . . . .	77
Mutable configurations: Reuse in Samarra's palaces and beyond . . . . .	78
Ornament, impermanence, and the elusive nature of "Abbasid style" . . . . .	80
5. An Enduring Trace: Palaces, Poetry, and the Literary Canon . . . . .	83
Architectural and verbal monuments . . . . .	85
The Samarra palace poems as exemplary "modern" works . . . . .	87
Abbasid palaces as timeless Arab architecture . . . . .	90
Poetic truths . . . . .	92
The afterlife of the Samarra palace poems . . . . .	94

Conclusion: The Concept of an “Impermanent Monument” and Its Legacy .....	97
Other early Islamic palatine traditions and their relationship to time .....	98
Contrasting temporalities in Islamic architecture and beyond .....	101
Appendix I: Select Transcriptions from Herzfeld’s Second Campaign Diary .....	103
Appendix II: Partial Inventory of Fragments of Architectural Ornament and Furnishings Attributable to the Dār al-Khilāfa of Samarra .....	109
Note on organization of inventory .....	109
Note on content of records .....	111
Links to related online resources .....	111
Inventory by Findspot Area .....	113
Bibliography .....	141
Index .....	153
Credits for photographs illustrated in figures .....	159
Figures .....	161

